

Score

WEEK 9

DEJA VU

Kyle can't beat the French once again in a rematch of the 2019 championship game

DR*WS IN PARIS 136.04 MEDELLIN SEX TOURISTS 123.52

Tu Sucas De Bites, Connard
DREW STEMS BLEEDING IN GET
RIGHT GAME V KYLE DREW ALLEN, A1

A New Worst
SO CALLED "WORST TEAM"
BATTERS ANDREW BERDOS, C2

A Quiet Place
CRICKETS HEARD FROM DONNY
VS MICHAEL BERDOS, C2

WINGS FALLING OFF FOR BRIAN; BERDOS LOVES OLD MEN AS HUNT AND KELCE GIVE HIM THE WIN. C1

Sports

THE BERDOS GAZETTE WEDNESDAY NOVEMBER 6, 2024

DR*WS IN PARIS 136.04, MEDELLIN SEX TOURISTS 123.52

Big Berd	155
Bucky	145

Menace	161
Gaggle	145

Neigh	179
AoA	139

H.T.G!	145
CHAM	117

Love Loses

Kyle stupidly plays Jordan Love in a monsoon; Drew wins

Picked up the pieces while I ice myself everywhere after trying the bowling pin celebration...

■ Brian officially is in the midst of his worst slump ever. He's never lost 4 games in a row, and now has a matchup with a rejuvenated Kyle upcoming.

■ Quiz: What matchup in our league has happened the most, and how many times has it happened? An example answer would be Holden and Brian, and it happened X times. Second question; who is the only NFL player has been the highest scorer of the week twice so far this year? Answers at the end.

DREW ALLEN

■ Drew's comment of "this year feels especially close" is actually more true than you think. Last year, we had 6 scores under 100. This year, we only have 1. On the other hand, last year we had seem to believe that will stay though.

■ Keeping an eye on the All-Rookie team, we have 2 undrafted running backs leading the way at that position. Big Bucky Irving and Tyrone Tracy are in pole position so far, which would be the first time ever we don't have a drafted RB end up on the team.

■ 8 wins is generally the baseline to make the playoffs when looking at historical data. That looks like it'll be enough this year as well. All you 3 win teams, it's not looking great.

■ On the flip side, 6 wins historically is enough to keep you out of the toilet bowl. Donny of course being the one blip to that trend. With how close things are this year, a 6 win team could easily fall into the bowl.

■ This would be Berdos' first year with an under .500 all play record, if things were to stay the same. He is getting CMC back though, so Surprised he didn't tear another ACL doing this!

I'm not sure I'd bet on that.

■ A general measuring stick for Rookies in our history is the 175+ point club. If you hit that number, more often than not, you'll be a consistent starter for someone. Jennette and Holden are the only owners who have no one on that list, but that could change this year. The aforementioned Bucky Irving is just below the points per game pace needed for Jennette. Malik Nabers is likely Holden's best option, but after missing two games, and also being contracted with Daniel Jones, it may be an uphill battle.

■ We have an interesting battle coming up on the All Time Team. The only position worth watching in this year of low scoring is PK1. As a reminder, average score trumps total score, and you can miss a maximum of two games (bye doesn't count). The current average to beat is 10.8, and we have three such kickers so far running away with it. Brian's claim of Austin Seibert being PK1 may come true, but he's already missed a game this year. Bus Boswell is close behind, and Brandon Aubrey is lurking behind after a slow few weeks held up by long field goals.

■ There is no owner out there that has anything other than a 100% win rate in the championship, or a 0% win rate in the championship. This of course, is skewed by one fat head who collects the losses like pokemon cards, but maybe that will change this year.

■ The current top two of the Fail Division, Kyle and Michael, have zero division titles between them. Only Jennette doesn't have a division title on the other side.

■ We were a Patrick Mahomes start away from

This week was full of highlight reel plays a favorite sweep in the betting circles. Kyle ruined the world's parlays with that one. Dumbass.

■ Still baffled that Brian would give up on Cedric Tillman. If David Bell went off for 45 points in a three week span I would be whipping it out and spinning it in public, victory lapping all over the place. But David Bell sucks so we don't get that chance sadly.

■ Quiz answers: Jennette and Andrew have the most times, 18 in fact. Andrew holds an 11-7 record in that matchup. An extra 3 games for the toilet bowl really bumps the numbers.

Joe Burrow has been weekly MVP twice this year

Standings

Awesome

Team	Record	GB
1. The Fantasy Menace	6-3	-
2. Chameleons	5-4	1
3. Allen of Arrakis	5-4	1
4. Dr*ws In Paris	5-4	1
5. Big Bucky Hunter	4-5	2

Fail

Team	Record	GB
1. The Neigh Sayers	6-3	-
2. Medellin Sex Tourists	4-5	2
3. Big Berd	4-5	2
4. The Gaggle Strikes Back	3-6	3
5. HOT TUA GO!	3-6	3

Rank	Team	Week 8 Rank	Rank Change
1	 The Fantasy Menace	2	+1
2	 The Neigh Sayers	4	+2
3	 Chameleons	1	-2
4	 Big Berd	8	+4
5	 The Gaggle Strikes Back	5	0
6	 Medellin Sex Tourists	3	-3
7	 Allen of Arrakis	6	-1
8	 Big Bucky Hunter	7	-1
9	 HOT TUA GO!	9	0
10	 Dr*ws In Paris	10	0

GALETTA