Consensus No. 1 looks mortal all of a sudden

Picked up the pieces as I do the Sexy Dexy dance in my basement...

■ Back from my break, time to look at some stats. Drew brought up a good question the other day; did he have the worst ever efficiency score with a 57.7% last week? Answer: There have only been 2 members to have a <60% efficiency score. One was Drew with his 57.7, the other was Holden with a... 59.5% in 2019. So yes, it was the worst. To put it into perspective, this was a rate that we'd only see back in 2019 when we all kind of sucked at this. Major regression from Drew!

■ Quiz: Two owners have hit the 100% efficiency score metric. Both of them have actually done it twice. Name those two owners. Answers at the end.

■ Time to check in on the Gazette's preseason predictions, and see how we have been doing.

Jack (Projected 11-3) 5-3:

Well, he can still technically hit this mark. But injuries are something you cannot predict, and you can argue that if his team is healthy, he sits on one loss. I'm not too mad at this.

Jennette (Projected 7-7) 3-5:

Happy with this one. If he had kept Henry, he'd probably get 8 wins. We are on track for 7 though, and he has a bunch of "coulda won"s as well.

Donny (Projected 7-7) 5-3:

Josh Allen has looked mortal! That wasn't on my bingo card. But Donny's PF puts his team in that 2nd tier, and with a lot of teams sucking, he most likely gets to 8 wins. Again, happy with this one.

James Cook is quietly having a very good year for Kyle

Andrew (Projected 7-7) 6-2:

Look, there's an inherant bias when projecting your own team. All of you I bet would have disagreed with my projections of your team. I tried to dial my excitement back, but to be honest, a lot of coin flips have gone my way in terms of running back opportunities. Maybe I go on a long losing streak to even it out.

Drew (Projected 4-10) 4-4:

ItsHappening.gif. Will he win one more game? Yeah probably. But things are in a serious tailspin here. No one would be surprised if he's the Awesome Division's representative in the toilet bowl. He's in his own head, and has the second worst PF in the league.

Kyle (Projected 11-3) 4-4:

Our first loss on the board. I totally misread the Fail division this year. They have all in general been a huge bag of suck. Kyle went from "my first is off the table because I'm going to be last" to spamming Bus Boswell in the chat. Happy for him.

Berdos (Projected 8-6) 3-5:

Would anyone be surprised if he went on a huge run? His team is getting healthy again, his missing piece was always a QB and now Baker is #good, and his division is soft. Division title in the works?

Michael (Projected 8-6) 5-3:

On track here! Our resident Helen Keller sits atop his division with a tier 2 PF. That won't matter if he gets the bye though. Big result for him this past week. I think 8-6 is a fair projection though.

Brian (Projected 4-10) 3-5:

Whispers are coming from this franchise that they may be selling parts off after a tough loss this week. The "most maligned" franchise of the year has had trouble stringing together wins. Again, 4 wins may look harsh now, but I wasn't expecting his division to suck as bad as they have.

Yes, CeeDee was this wide open. Twice in fact!

Holden (Projected 3-11) 2-6:

His average PF is 5 less than 9th best. His team struggles to hit 100 points. Jalen Hurts is backpacking the team. He started a player that was injured this week. 3-11 is on the table, and a return to the TB feels imminent.

■ Quiz answers. Berdos (Week 10 2021, Week 13 2023) and Andrew (Week 10 2021, Week 13 2021).
